National Weather Service Sets
Flood Safety Awareness Week Press Briefing

SACRAMENTO – The National Weather Service’s Sacramento Office will hold a press briefing at 10 a.m. on Thursday, March 22 in conjunction with National Flood Safety Awareness Week.

Representatives from the California-Nevada River Forecast Center and the State of California’s Department of Water Resources will highlight flood preparedness efforts, warning procedures, and current water storage status.

Following brief comments on flood safety awareness, local, state, and federal agency representatives will be available to answer questions about water and flood management.

Additional brochures, displays, and information about locating flood information on the Internet will also be available.

Location:
Conference
Room 232
